

ENCOURAGING SAFE AND HEALTHY WORKPLACES AND COMMUNITIES

WHO WE ARE

The American Association of Safety Councils (AASC) is a national association of non-profit safety organizations across the United States and Canada. Founded in 2000, our goal is to promote safety and health in the workplace, home, and community.

The power of AASC lies within its many members. With an expanded network, safety organizations are able to reach communities and businesses across the nation.

Information on safety and health is ever changing and AASC keeps its members current on the latest developments. Additionally, business are continuously changing; but with the support of AASC, safety councils are evolving to stay relevant and improve their importance to local regions.

TESTIMONIALS

Tom Odegaard

“The ability to share information and ideas on work practices and personnel issues; marketing and technology; as well as new programs and services has proven invaluable to ESC. As a founding member of AASC, we are proud to continue in this alliance of safety professionals.”

Evergreen Safety Council

Brandy Howard

“Being part of AASC has proven to be instrumental in gaining industry specific knowledge. Coming together with other professionals in the safety arena has allowed me to learn new strategies and expand programs and services to our members. My involvement with AASC has also afforded me the opportunity to grow professionally through interactive meeting sessions which in turn also benefits my organization.”
